

Insight Video Net & Pelco Integration Provides Powerful Automated Video Management System

Rancho Cucamonga, CA (July 14, 2009) – Insight Video Net is proud to announce integration with Pelco, manufacturer of the industry-leading Pelco Endura product line. Insight Video Net's flagship product, Central Management System (CMS Flex) will be immediately available to Pelco Resellers, enabling them to offer a software solution that automatically manages and protects video extracted from their Endura recording systems.

Pelco's Endura platform is a complete solution for high definition video encoding, recording, and display. Designed to provide security professionals the tools they need for success, it offers a powerful yet extremely easy and user configurable solution for the most sophisticated of applications. Because it's a complete end-to-end HD video security solution, Endura guarantees interoperability and performance. "Not only does this partnership with Insight Video Net provide our resellers with an automated digital video management application for mass amounts of video, it's also a great complement to our product line," says Rob Morello, Senior Product Marketing Manager of Pelco. "By providing quick access to information, CMS software helps streamline security operations, securing video as evidence, and allowing use to authorized personnel only." Insight Video Net joins the elite team of the Pelco IP partnership program. Bob Carreon, Insight Video Net, CEO stated, "For Insight Video Net, this integration partnership extends our product offering to a video security pioneer and allows them to add even more value to their Endura product line. This partnership will allow us to continue to provide leading edge solutions to our collective customers for new or existing security applications."
